

Ken Coleman, MA, LPC, NCC

Past-President/Secretary

Kenneth Coleman has been advocating for kids for 15 years as part of the Community Health division of St. John Providence Health System. Today he is Director of school-based initiatives for the health system, overseeing clinics in numerous schools in Detroit and the surrounding area where children and their families receive health care, counseling, and wellness services. Ken has worked with kids one-on-one, but also focused on improving public policy as it relates to children. He works for policies that are “kid-friendly” in education, in protective services, in health care and any related arena.

Ken serves on numerous boards in the community. Currently, he is the immediate past President to the School-Community Health Alliance of Michigan and a member of the Board of Directors of Communities and Schools of Detroit.

Kenneth is also the CEO for Interactive Educational Solutions, LLC, which designs and creates educational workbooks for adolescents and teenagers and provides consultation services to professional athletes. He designs workbooks that enhance the quality of life experienced by adolescents and teens, focusing on pertinent issue they encounter daily. Kenneth also provides consultation services to both public and private schools throughout the United States on issues affecting children. Kenneth has presented a myriad of workshops both locally and nationally on issues impacting children.

Kenneth holds a bachelor's degree in Public Administration from Eastern Michigan University and a Masters degree in Guidance and Counseling from Wayne State University. Kenneth is a Licensed Professional Counselor and a National Certified Counselor.
